Teaching skills for the digital age.

Solutions that work for your organization.

Technology For All is teaching skills for the digital age.

From 5 to 5,000 learners, we can train your clients or staff efficiently and effectively.

Flexible solutions for you

To support our mission, Technology For All (TFA) offers courses to all types of organizations, communities and businesses. TFA has trained thousands of learners of all types on a range of topics. We can meet your training needs on a wide variety of topics, including digital job skills, professional development, organizational development, school success and college prep, digital literacy, and more.

We have real-world experience in business, technology, education, government, military, petrochemical, manufacturing, telecommunications, construction, and other industries. Also, we are experts in instructional design and development, and can create custom competency-based assessment tests and web-based/blended courses.

TFA is a not-for-profit organization with the know-how to provide cost effective, creative solutions to your most challenging training needs. All revenue above expenses supports our mission to empower low-income and underserved persons that they might have the knowledge, skills and abilities to fully participate in today's world.
